Acknowledgements

There are a number of individuals and organisations without whom this work would not have been possible. First we would like to thank the Leverhulme Trust for funding the work. Thank you for putting your faith in a team of business academics to shed light on the important questions of surveillance, security and the private sector. Second we would like to thank all of the anonymous participants in the fieldwork who so freely gave of their time to share their views with us. We would also like to thank the many industry associations who helped to facilitate access to different participants. In particular we would like to thank Richard Taylor at Travel Weekly, Doreen McKenzie of the ABTA Airlines Group, Timon Molloy at The Money Laundering Bulletin and the Institute of Money Laundering Prevention Officers who allowed us to attend their events.

We would like to express our gratitude to the many academic friends and colleagues who have engaged with this work throughout the course of its life and have generously given us encouragement as well as their views on its development. In particular we would like to thank David Lyon, The New Transparency Project and Joan Sharpe, without which this work would not have been conceived. We would also like to thank Steve Graham who suggested the title for the book. We would like to thank many of our colleagues who, directly or indirectly, influenced the direction of the work: Anthony Amicelle, Louise Amooore, Caroline Clarke, Sara Degli Esposti, Marieke DeGoede, MariaLaura DiDomenico Gilles Favarel, Kevin Haggerty, Gerry Hanlon, Ben Hardy, Richard Holti, Jef Huysmans, Gavin Jack, David Knights, Reinhard Kreissl, David Murakami Wood, Mike McCahill, Clive Norris, Andras Pap, Jason Pridmore, Michael Nagenborg, Charles Raab, Caroline Ramsey, Bence Ságvari, John Storey, Pinelopi Troulinnou, David C Wilson, William Webster, Dean Wilson and Nils Zurawski. We would also like to thank the participants in the 4th and 5th Biannual Surveillance and Society Conferences, Meiji University (Dis)embodiment 'unconference' attendees in December 2013, various Living in Surveillance
