Acknowledgements

I owe a special thanks to my informants who were brave enough to flip the script and subject themselves to an ethnographic study. Without you this dissertation would not have been possible. Thank you for taking me in and letting me learn beyond what I have ever imagined possible: Rikke, Stine B., Finn, Dani, Gitte, Marie, Maria, Janice, Sebolelo, Pi, Cathrine, Matt, Emma, Emilie, Bryony, Patrick, Jesper, Mikkel, Corbin, Stine I., Kasper, Morten, Iben, Tina, Jeppe, Rasmus, Anna, Tim, Anne-Sofie, Monica, Jakob, Søren; all the administrative personnel; the digital designers; the computer experts; the student helpers; the interns; the book keepers and everybody else I encountered in the consultancies. A special thanks also goes out to all the amazing people I have met at the EPIC conferences.

Another special thanks go to my supervisor Hanne Mogensen for always being incredibly supportive. Thank you for letting me in and having me under your wings for these years. You are a truly inspiring mentor always ready with a helping hand and a great chat. Thank you for steering the entire project, 'The Practice of Anthropology: People and Ideas in Action' professionally and letting us all shine.

Birgitte Gorm Hansen and Morten Axel Pedersen have supported me with invaluable encouragement and discussions in the research group, taking us places I did not believe possible for research. You both have incredible perspectives and bring fascinating ideas to life in academia. Thank you!

A very special thanks to professor Michael Taussig and Columbia University for receiving me at my stay abroad. Thank you for your encouragement and support. Thank you Knud Højgaard's Fond for supporting this stay abroad economically.

Thanks to all my colleagues who have supported me with knowledge, great advice, and festive encounters. A special thanks goes out to all my former and current co-workers from the PhD group at the Department of Anthropology at the University of Copenhagen – you are all rock stars! Thank you, Becca, for being a word wizard beyond normal!

Finally, a special thanks to my family and friends – for always supporting my endeavors and dreams.
