DEDICATION

I dedicate this book to the beings of the Magical Isle. Especially the Over Soul, the Young one, and the Guardians of the Magical Isle.
This is to all magical beings.

'We always create our own living experiences. From our created and chosen beliefs, our emotional states and our actions, whether asleep or awake, in our minds that is our personal bubbles of reality. If we are not happy about the content of the moment, then it is up to us to create different material for the moment, whether it is, what in our mind was, is and will be'.

1 PROLOG

The war of the Magical Isle (dream):

The war between the black soulless robots and the war beetles in their dull grey armor had gone on for decades. The world was almost destroyed and it seemed like the robots were winning. The Dreamer thought that it probably was for the best.

Then as the last of the giant war beetles was falling down, into the mud, the dreamer took a closer look at one of the fallen beetles and saw that it was the colors of blue sky and sand. Therefore, the beetles had to be natural beings, and the robots were not.

‘Horrific!’ thought the Dreamer, ‘This world is almost at an end; a red and black streaked sky, and only mud and dead things left. This is not good’. At that thought the robots froze. The beetle, the Dreamer was looking at, woke up and at the same time changed in to a humanlike blue being with sandy hair, a magical being. All the other beetles also woke up again and transformed into these blue beings. One of the beings thanked the Dreamer for seeing the nature of things in time, and told a story about a wicked witch who many years ago cast a spell on them, the Guardians of the Magical Isle.
